NUMBER III

ELECTION RETURNS ANNOUNCED

The Marion band, under the direction of Mr. G.L. Lyman, was presented as a feature attraction by the All-Iowa Junior Livestock Exposition on Wednesday, Sept. 13, at Frontier Park, Cedar Rapids, in its initial concert of the year.

During the afternoon, the band furnished the music for a cavalry and machine-gun drill as well as for the freestyle acts. The evening's concert included Morning Noon and Night Overture, Slavonic Rhapsody, and several marches and light overtures.

The band, besides being given the honor of opening the exposition, gave a performance on the closing day, Saturday, as a part of the Band Festival.

Saturday evening offered an unusual privilege to Marion Band members. The Marion band was a part of the one thousand piece mass band which closed the Exposition.

VOX needs interested students to fill the remaining staff positions. A junior III staff is yet to be chosen, and reporters, columnists, and feature writers are among the positions open to Senior III students.

In a whirlwind of ballots and bombshells, class elections were held Friday afternoon. In the Senior Class, Dick Ferreter, football and basketball star, defeated G. Ward, running on the aggressive ticket in the race for President. The Junior class elected Mrs. Allen Granger to the blue-ribbon position by a narrow margin over Norman Givens. The Sophomores chose Susan Jenkins on the first ballot. The Freshman settled a close contest for the lead position by balloting Bob Carey into the lead. A complete line-up follows:

Freshmen: Carey, Pres.; Ford, V. Pres.; Belster, Sec.; Ard, Treas. Sophomores: Jenkins, Pres.; Lakees, V. Pres.; Howe, Sec.; Chesley, Treas. Juniors: Granger, Pres.; May, V. Pres.; Mc Cowen, Sec.; Beck, Treas. Seniors: Ferreter, Pres.; Gavin, V. Pres.; McKean, Sec.; Bergerman, Treas.

Jack Taylor, who had his hand cut several in a shoe accident, a week and a half ago, was brought home from the hospital last Wednesday. His condition is greatly improved, but it will be necessary for him to remain home for several days before returning to school.

Who was the enterprising Junior who put out his own nomination papers in the election fracas last week? In spite of his efforts and reputation, his attempt to bring the glory home was unsuccessful, according to reports. Better luck next time!

LURRY OF SOCIAL ACTIVITY SET TO CAUSE ANY DAMAGE HERE BIOLOGY NOTES . . .

Social activities of LHS have arrived at the stage to it might well be labeled "the calm before the storm". Summer festivities have ended and fall frivolities haven't begun. The Freshman class seems socially torpid, if you except the remarkable case of Virginia Smith. She attempted an imitation of an echo bounding from camp to camp on her nose.

Between Malvina, the dandy, is suffering from a corn on her foot which she injured while thumping her drum. What will she do about dancing? Another dandy, Harriet Swift, was under the weather earlier in the week. Her trouble was too much tooting (pump) on her horn. It looks as if drum sticks and tubas will have to be made lighter if the health and happiness of the dandies is to remain intact.

A group of roller skaters took to the rink the other evening with many and varied results. Martha Snell and Helen Biddick joined Molly Granger in forgetting that the skates were supposed to remain under them instead of in front of them. Frank Swift, the mighty boy, wanted to play tag with everyone. He proved such a menace that he was gently (?) rebuked by the owners of the establishment.

With the prospect of several dances and a football game in the near future, the tempo of social promises to increase.

VOL will sponsor a student dance in the high school gym on Friday, Oct. 22. The affair will be open to all high school students. Tickets will be put on sale at a later date. G. W. and his attractive rhythm will furnish the music for the occasion.

Biology has become a big subject in one respect -- that of distance. Letters are on their way to both coasts requesting marine specimens and plants not native to Iowa.

Bill seems definitely on the way and rather spoiling the fun so many Marion people enjoyed this last week, that of gathering and preparing mushrooms and puffballs for the table. Very few leaves left to gather in this town except the leaves of the double tree J. L. asked about during a recent class jaunt.

Somebody asked a college professor how pure science helped business, and he replied, "What would the suspender business amount to without the law of gravitation?"

Do mosquitoes bite? Strictly speaking, no. Their actual method of attack is to stab the flesh and then suck the blood. And it is only the female that is guilty of that. The male generally lives on plants.

JOKES

Mr.: "Is that Jean at the piano? It sounds like she is playing with only one hand."

P.: "Yes, I suppose that young man in the parlor is playing with the other hand."

A new man sat in with the old hand at rehearsal. Pointing to a spot on the music he asked, "What's them thi things?" The old hand scratched his head. "Oh, them's flats. Some plays 'em and some doesn't. I doesn't."

Says Brother Silas: "When does a coos-ter become a musician?"

Says Brother Ensilage: "When e gets his corn-et."

Lost: Yellow gold Masonic pin. Oval in shape. Please return to LHS or Elsie. 1340 1st. Grade 10.
